

My wife and I are recently retired and rely on our XM radio as we travel around the country. Specifically, the traffic and weather broadcasts have proved invaluable. Our travels take us through major metro cities where we have no knowledge of which radio stations broadcast traffic and when. We could be spend a lot of time just trying to find a station that maybe has a traffic report in time to be of any value. With XM, we ALWAYS have immediate access to a comprehensive report in the cities already covered. This gives us the chance to react to traffic problems BEFORE we find ourselves trapped in a jam we could have avoided. We are subscribers of XM and expect to continue to receive these traffic and weather services. It's very disturbing to learn that the NAB believes it has any right to petition to restrict our access to these fine XM Satellite Radio services. Perhaps the National Association of Broadcasters should encourage its member stations to offer similar services rather than petition to deny my access via XM.

Sincerely,

Roland & Peggyann Willasch
